Brian McCall and Liz Yore discuss several aspects of Archbishop Viganò's analysis of the fraudulent McCarrick Report that have not been covered by many people. They discover some subtle messages that go beyond the McCarrick Report itself and conclude that the Archbishop is directing us to ask specific questions and exam troubling events. Topics include:

- The risk that McCarrick is still prowling about victimizing the Church; and
- The resignation of Benedict and election of Bergoglio may have been a coup by the deep state and deep church
